PROSECUTORS: MH17
DOWNED BY
RUSSIAN-MADE MISSILE

Malaysia Airlines flight MH17 was shot down by a missile fired from a launcher brought into Ukraine from Russia and located in a village held by pro-Russian rebels, international prosecutors said on Wednesday. The findings counter Moscow's suggestion that the passenger plane, en route from Amsterdam to Kuala Lumpur in July 2014, was brought down by Ukraine's military rather than the separatists. All 298 people on board, most of them Dutch, were killed. The conclusions were based on thousands of wiretaps, photographs, witness statements and forensic tests during more than two years of inquiries into an incident which led to a sharp rise in tensions between Russia and the West. Among the key findings were: The plane was hit by a Russian-made Buk-9M38 missile; the missile was fired from the rebel-held village of Pervomaysk in eastern Ukraine; and the launcher was transported into Ukraine from Russia. REUTERS

SENATE OVERWHELMINGLY REJECTS OBAMA VETO OF SAUDI SEPTEMBER 11 BILL

The U.S. Senate on Wednesday overwhelmingly rejected President Barack Obama's veto of legislation allowing relatives of the victims of the Sept. 11 attacks to sue Saudi Arabia's government. The final vote was 97-1 against the veto. Democratic Minority Leader Harry Reid was the lone "no" vote. Democratic Sen. Tim Kaine, Hillary Clinton's vice presidential running mate, and Bernie Sanders, an independent who caucuses with Democrats and is a former White House contender, did not vote. The measure next goes to the House of Representatives, which was due to vote later on Wednesday. If two-thirds of House members also support the "Justice Against Sponsors of Terrorism Act," it would be the first veto override of Obama's eight-year presidency. REUTERS

APPLE MOVING UK HQ TO
LANDMARK BATTERSEA
POWER STATION

Apple said on Wednesday it is moving its London headquarters to the landmark Battersea Power Station, a move hailed by the government as a sign that major firms are still investing after the Brexit vote. The power station, built in the 1930s and famous for its imposing quartet of art deco chimneys, stood derelict on the south bank of the River Thames for about three decades until the site was bought in 2012 by a Malaysian consortium. A total of 42 acres is being developed with around half the area earmarked for shops, restaurants and hotels and half for housing. REUTERS

Suffolk County Courthouse WIKIMEDIA COMMONSFormer priest charged with child rape, sex abuse

Prosecutors say the former priest used his position to "groom and sexually assault" his victim.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT

A former priest who once served as an altar boy coordinator at St. Brendan's Church in Dorchester was arraigned Wednesday on charges of rape and assault related to incidents from the 1980s and 1990s.

Michael Walsh, who will be 80 years old on Friday, allegedly used his position in the church and as a coach with the Cedar Grove Baseball League "to gain access to, groom, and ultimately sexually assault" a boy while he was in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, according to Suffolk District Attorney Daniel F. Conley's office. Walsh was indicted

"Changes in the statute of limitations law for child sexual abuse cases help us, but it means nothing without the bravery of abuse survivors who overcome their fear and shame to disclose trauma."

Conley

earlier this month on two counts of rape of a child and three counts of indecent assault and battery on a child. Clerk Magistrate Anne Kaczmarek ordered him to wear a GPS monitor, remain in Massachusetts and surrender his passport while the case was pending.

In 2006, Massachusetts legislation was passed that eliminated the statute of limitations in child sexual abuse cases. In such cases, prosecutors are required to come forward with "objective, corroborative evidence" of the abuse if it occurred more than 27 years earlier, the DA's office said.

Walsh also resided outside of Massachusetts for extended periods of time between the alleged abuse and the indictment, which stopped "the proverbial clock" on the statute of limitations, according to the DA's office.

The victim, now in his late 30s, came forward to law enforcement earlier this year, officials said.

"Changes in the statute of limitations law for child sexual abuse cases help us, but it means nothing without the bravery of abuse survivors who overcome their fear and shame to disclose trauma," Conley said in a statement. "Survivors, young or old, should know that they can always count on us to help, support, and speak for them."

Walsh allegedly took the victim and other children out to eat and to the movies. The alleged abuse took place in Walsh's car, home and office, according to the DA's office.

Assistant District Attorney Ashley Polin of the Child Protection Unit told the court that Walsh was ordained as a priest but relieved of those duties in 2002 after being accused of abuse that took place while he was assigned to the St. Francis de Sales Church in Charlestown.

Those allegations are not related to the current Suffolk County indictment, the DA's office said.

Shocking Clinical Results Gives Older Men New Hope

"It's the proven, science supported and affordable solution millions of older men have been waiting for..." — Dr. Bassam Damaj

By Harlan S. Waxman
Health News Syndicate

New York — If you're like the rest of us guys over 50; you probably already know the truth... "Viagra" doesn't work! Simply getting an erection doesn't fix the problem" says Dr. Bassam Damaj, chief scientific officer at the world famous Innovus Pharma Laboratories.

As we get older, we need more help in bed. Not only does our desire fade; but erections can be soft or feeble, one of the main complaints with Viagra*. Besides, Viagra* is expensive... costing as much as $50.00 a pill.

Plus, it does nothing to stimulate your brain to want sex. "I don't care what you take, if you aren't interested in sex, you can't get or keep an erection. It's physiologically impossible," said Dr. Damaj.

MADE JUST FOR MEN OVER 50

But now, for the first time ever, there's a pill made just for older men. It's called Vesele*. A new pill that helps you get an erection by stimulating your body and your brainwaves. So Vesele* can work even when nothing else worked before.

The new men's pill is not a drug. It's something completely different.

Because you don't need a prescription for Vesele*, sales are exploding. The maker just can't produce enough of it to keep up with demand. Even doctors are having a tough time getting their hands on it. So what's all the fuss about?

More and more men are seeking alternatives to costly ED prescriptions that don't always work.

WORKS ON YOUR HEAD AND YOUR BODY

The new formula takes on erectile problems with a whole new twist. It doesn't just address the physical problems of getting older; it works on the mental part of sex too. Unlike Viagra*, the new pill stimulates your sexual brain chemistry as well. Actually helping you regain the passion and burning desire you had for your partner again. So you will want sex with the hunger and stamina of a 25-year-old.

THE BRAIN CONNECTION

Vesele takes off where Viagra* only begins. Thanks to a discovery made by 3 Nobel-Prize winning scientists; Vesele* has become the first ever patented supplement to harden you and your libido. So you regain your desire as well as the ability to act on it.

In a 16-week clinical study; scientists from the U.S.A. joined forces to prove Nitric Oxide's effects on the cardio vascular system. They showed that Nitric Oxide could not only increase your ability to get an erection, it would also work on your brainwaves to stimulate your desire for sex. The results were remarkable and published in the world's most respected medical journals.

THE SCIENCE OF SEX

The study asked men, 45 to 65 years old to take the main ingredient in Vesele* once a day. Then they were instructed not to change the way they eat or exercise but to take Vesele* twice a day. What happened next was remarkable. Virtually every man in the study who took Vesele* twice a day reported a huge difference in their desire for sex. In layman's terms, they were horny again. They also experienced harder erections that lasted for almost 20 minutes. The placebo controlled group (who received sugar pills) mostly saw no difference.

AN UNEXPECTED BONUS: The study results even showed an impressive increase in the energy, brain-power and memory of the participants.

SUPPLY LIMITED BY OVERWHELMING DEMAND

"Once we saw the results we knew we had a game-changer said Dr. Damaj. We get hundreds of calls a day from people begging us for a bottle. It's been crazy. We try to meet the crushing demand for Vesele*."

DOCTOR: "VESELE* PASSED THE TEST"

"As a doctor, I've studied the effectiveness of Nitric Oxide on the body and the brain. I'm impressed by the way it increases cerebral and penile blood flow. The result is evident in the creation of Vesele*. It's sure-fire proof that the mind/body connection is unbeatable when achieving and maintaining an erection and the results are remarkable" said Dr. Damaj.

HERE'S WHAT MEN ARE SAYING

Investigation expands into mother-son fishing trip

Nathan Carman was rescued at sea; his mother is presumed dead.

@kristindakota
letters@metro.us

Police are investigating the circumstances of a mother-son fishing trip that ended with the rescue of the young man who was lost at sea for a week and the disappearance of his mother, who is presumed dead.

A freighter found Nathan Carman, 22, alive on a raft on Sunday, a week after he and his mother, 54-year-old Linda Carman, went fishing off the coast of Rhode Island.

The U.S. Coast Guard has said that they will not reopen a search for Linda Carman.

Nathan Carman was brought to the Coast Guard's base in Boston Tuesday morning, where he was reunited with his father, according to the Coast Guard.

Carman told the Coast Guard that their boat made a funny noise. When it began taking on water, he moved to the life raft but could not find his mother. "I was whistling and calling and looking around, and I didn't see her," he said.

Carman

several items, including a modem, SIM card and letter he wrote, WBZ reported. According to court records obtained by the Hartford Courant, Carman was a suspect in the 2013 fatal shooting of his grandfather. He was never charged because the arrest warrant was returned with a "request for further information," according to the Courant.

Carman was the last person to see his grandfather alive on Dec. 20, 2013. He had dinner with him in Windsor that night and the 87-year-old man was found dead the next morning, having been shot three times, The Associated Press reported. Carman has Asperger's syndrome, according to WBZ, and disappeared from his home five years ago when he was upset over the death of his horse. He was found four days later in Virginia. An investigation by Rhode Island police revealed that Carman's boat was in need of mechanical repair and that he had been doing repairs on his own, "which could have potentially rendered the boat unsafe for operation," South Kingstown Detective Lt. Alfred Bucco III wrote in an affidavit, according to the Courant.

As of Wednesday morning, Carman had not been charged with anything.

Harvard establishes task force to ensure a more inclusive community

The Ivy League school has come under fire in the past with regard to diversity issues.

Harvard University wants its students to feel like they belong.

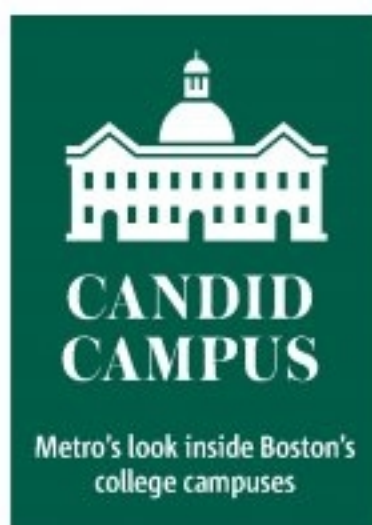

Harvard President Drew Faust announced Wednesday the creation of a university-wide task force on inclusion and belonging, which she says is a way to help the school's community thrive as it becomes increasingly diverse.

Harvard has come under fire in the past on diversity issues. Last year, a lawsuit argued that the university violated civil rights laws by holding Asian-American students to a higher standard and thus capping their admissions.

This year, a variety of ethnicities saw an increase in their representation on campus compared to previous incoming classes. The class of 2020 included more than 26 percent of students who identify as Asian, 11.4 percent as black or African-American and 13.1 percent as Hispanic or Latino compared to 23.5 percent, 11.2 percent and 12.5 percent respectively for the class of 2019, according to a school newspaper survey.

"Harvard's commitment to excellence is deeply connected to our efforts to attract students, faculty, and staff from diverse backgrounds, life experiences and perspectives," Faust wrote in a letter announcing the task force. "Exposure to difference fosters creativity, challenges settled assumptions and helps make possible the advancement of knowledge central to our educational mission."

But Faust wants to make the move from being a diverse campus to one of belonging among all its students. Essential to this, she continued, is Harvard's responsibility to provide channels of access and opportunity for everyone.

"[The task force] will engage in active outreach with an eye toward gaining a broad understanding of the lived experience of the diverse populations on our campus," she wrote. "It will also solicit ideas about ways to strengthen our shared commitment to building a community in which everyone has the opportunity to thrive."

Faust encouraged students to make their voices heard by participating in task force-held events.

The task force will focus on diving into four major issues: "demographic realities," in which the school asks how it can increase diversity and bring about positive change; "the fabric of the institution," which involves looking into the lived experience of its students, staff and faculty; ensuring that its academic resources advance issues of diversity and inclusion; and "Harvard's organizational structures," which will examine how the school's abundant diversity officers, programs and initiatives work together.

"At its best, life at Harvard is transformative for the people who are here, because they experience new ideas, encounter people with different perspectives and experiences, and become members of communities of learning and exploration," Faust told the Harvard Gazette.

Boston Redevelopment Authority gets rebranded

The organization is now known as the Boston Planning and Development Agency.

@kristindakota
letters@metro.us

The Boston Redevelopment Authority has a new name and a new outlook.

The agency is adopting a new "organization identity" this week that it says better defines what it does in the city. Now known as the Boston Planning and Development Agency, the organization has also released an updated mission statement.

"Our name describes what we do as an organization: planning in order to shape the future of the city of Boston," the new site explains. "Our name emphasizes our role in planning because the BPDA is uniquely tasked with thinking about Boston's future and taking a broad view of many components that come together. We then work to develop that plan and make it a reality."

Mayor Marty Walsh announced the rebranding while addressing the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday.

In his speech, Walsh said that the while the BRA — created in 1957 under then-Mayor John Hynes — has played a key role in this city's successful transformations, it has also been "defined by moments of injustice ... and a lack of transparency in recent decades."

The new name isn't just a surface-level change, Walsh said, but an indicator of how the agency will work from this point on.

"Right off the bat, planning and development review teams will visit the neighborhoods, together, to talk about what the new process will look like," Walsh said. "I can announce today that it will include a redesigned community meeting format, to provide more context and more clarity; and an online platform for neighborhood-specific updates and feedback. We're going to make sure conversations are open, ongoing and available to all."

Walsh also announced a BPDA+ program to initiate collaborations between the agency and nonprofits, businesses, universities and startups.

The BRA garnered a reputation in Boston as an agency that favored developers over the wants of the neighborhood. The "new and modern" BPDA promises to listen more to adapt a "community-first" approach and "ground everything we do in the daily experiences of the people of Boston and our neighborhoods," according to its website.

Rob Kardashian and his sisters are beefin'—what else is new?

Khloe, Kim, Kylie and Kourtney planned a shower for their brother, who is expecting a baby with on-again, off-again fiancée Blac Chyna, and at the last minute he didn't show up!

At first sources told Us Weekly that Rob bailed after hearing the party would be filmed for their show, "Keeping up with the Kardashians," so he was like, "F—k that."

Or maybe they're just too cool for tradition. Apparently the couple plan to throw a "co-ed, gender-neutral" baby shower Oct. 2, which they'll film for their own show, "Rob and Chyna." A source told Us Weekly the sisters will not be in attendance, as they're not tight with Chyna's friends, like Amber Rose.

Back on Monday, Rob tweeted out Kylie's phone number followed by a bunch of laugh-crying

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

But wait! Yesterday TMZ reported that Chyna and Rob have actually been broken up for months, and that's why Chyna wasn't invited. Sounds like they were just trying to be supportive sisters.

His family is worried about his physical health, in addition to the emotional toll of this unhealthy relationship—since getting together with Chyna, he's gained back the 50 pounds he lost only a few months back.

emojis. He has since retweeted it, adding what may or may not be the real reason he's pissed: "Didn't invite the Mother of my child to a baby shower you were all trying to throw for me. You all must have lost your damn minds."

Vogue remade "Freedom" for the Instagram generation

VOGUE.COM

Even if you weren't alive yet, you remember George Michael's iconic supermodel-packed

"Freedom '90" music video. Linda Evangelista, Cindy Crawford, Naomi Campbell, Christy Turlington and Tatjana Patitz danced in their lingerie, lounged in bathtubs and gave major face while lip-synching to the 1990 track. More than 25 years later, it still stands up.

BUT — that was then, and this is now, and Vogue called in director Gordon von Steiner to give the concept a 26th anniversary facelift. Von Steiner — who also created those dope light-installation videos at this year's Met Gala — shot mega models Adriana Lima, Joan Smalls, Anna Ewers, Irina Shayk, Taylor Hill, Liu Wen, Imaan Hammam, Gracie Hartzel and more for the abridged rendition featuring the Spring 2017 collections. The girls strut, shake and work the camera in scenes across New York, including the Plaza Hotel and Times Square.

Double taps for likes all around.

Kim Kardashian gets her ass kissed — literally!

Close encounters between Kim Kardashian and her fans are a common occurrence in the media, but this creepy interaction was one for the books.

While in Paris on Wednesday, a stranger quickly slipped past Kim's security, ran up behind her and planted a kiss on her derriere. Usually "kissing ass" is appreciated, but not in this case: Her security team reacted unbelievably fast, pushing the man to the ground.

Vitalii Sediuk, a Ukrainian prankster, is allegedly the attacker. He's carried out many previous attacks on celebs, including grabbing model Gigi Hadid last week during Milan Fashion Week.

Let's complain about Patronus

JENNA BUSCH

Geek Girl in Hollywood

Jenna Busch takes on the way pop culture snubs its female fans. For more columns, visit metro.us/jenna-busch as well as her site, legion of leia (www.legionofleia.com)

Everyone is talking about the debates and frankly, I just can't today. I needed repeated palate cleansers of cat videos while watching ... and I couldn't even look at the orange ones. So today, I'm writing about the national obsession that was going on before the debate. Let's talk about the Patronus quiz.

First of all, if you're not familiar with the world of Harry Potter, a Patronus is basically an animal manifestation of your soul that comes out of your wand. That's really all you need to know. The official Harry Potter website already has quizzes for your house (mine's Ravenclaw, and my Ilvermorny house — that's the American school of Witchcraft and Wizardry — is Thunderbird) and your wand (mine is cedar wood with a Phoenix feather core 12 1/2" and Unbending flexibility — feel free to judge). Last week, J.K. Rowling released a quiz on the site to determine your Patronus.

You begin the quiz by wandering through a virtual forest and answering rapid questions, eventually finding out the animal manifestation of your soul.

Mine's a fox. Now, the reason I'm writing about this is that not everyone is superhappy with his or her Patronus. I've been reading post after post about how betrayed people feel to find out that their soul is a rat. I've heard things like, "Pottermore betrayed me. My Patronus is a salmon. I'm what, delicious?" Oh, and then there was, "My Patronus is a pig? My soul is bacon?" Even geek god Joss Whedon posted this on Twitter when he learned about his weasel Patronus: "Don't talk to me about nobility or tenaciousness or Ron's wonderful family — my life is OVER."

OK, maybe the quiz shouldn't include aardvarks and moles. Maybe pigs and mice aren't the way to go. Actually, they really aren't. I love the site and I'm happy with my Patronus. (My boyfriend got a shark. A shark! I don't think, however, that I'd be happy if my Patronus was a duck. I mean, I like ducks, but I don't think they represent my soul, nor do I have any desire to sell insurance.

Fantasy-as-wish-fulfillment is a real thing. It takes us out of our mundane existences and allows us to live vicariously through the characters we love. We wanted to believe we were getting owls telling us we've been accepted to Hogwarts. We wanted to think we were special, too, while reading about Ron, Harry and Hermione. A duck Patronus doesn't exactly make you feel special, now does it?

I recognize that this is a small thing. A very, very small thing, around the size of that mouse Patronus. I know what's going on in the world. I just wanted to take a moment to talk about something wasn't going to affect the government, my rights or the entire world. Maybe put more dragons in the Patronus quiz and make us feel better about our fantasy lives.

YG, The F— Donald Trump Tour

Wednesday, Oct. 19
House of Blues Boston

L.A.'s "Who Do You Love?" rapper has made identity politics a core tenet to his tour by thematically hanging it all on his anti-Trump anthem "FDT," which stands for exactly what you expect it would and expresses the rage of a generation. The high-energy Def Jam artist is a throwback to a certain kind of rap star, before they all started expressing their tender "feelings," and promises to bring a rowdy show.

James Blake has made a name for himself by innovating in delicate and atmospheric sounds. The "Retrograde" vocalist isn't afraid to experiment with the mechanics of his backing sonics or his voice, and after a high-profile feature on Beyoncé's "Lemonade" and the release of his ambitious "The Colour in Anything," now might be your best chance to catch the R&B Brit live.

It's always a good time for nostalgia, and seeing Green Day is your best chance to pretend that all the current fashion trends are true and the '90s never ended. Their new "Revolution Radio" single sounds like a midcareer classic and a perfect opportunity to mosh like you did during your irresponsible past.

to do

At the Wave, folks turn up on Sunday evening and still make it home in time to watch their favorite HBO drama.

BRENDAN MCGUIRK
@BrendanMcGuirk
letters@metro.us

Reports of Boston's inability to "turn up" have been greatly exaggerated.

Doubters should probably make a point to visit the Middlesex Lounge on Massachusetts Avenue in Cambridge this Sunday evening, as the sun sets. By around 7:30-8 p.m., even the skeptics will be riding the Wave, awash by the unmistakable sense of revelry brought on by the dance party. Or, in the common parlance: It's lit.

The Wave is a monthly day party put on by CLLCTV Boston — a local assemblage of organizing creatives committed to curating and documenting local nightlife. Tired of stringent dress codes and excessive cover charges, the CLLCTV minds conceived a regular event that could put to rest out-of-date notions that Boston isn't equipped to throw the kinds of high-energy parties people might expect to find in other social hotbeds like New York or L.A.

"There wasn't too many day parties in the city for people like us or that thought like us," says Paul Francois, Wave DJ and CLLCTV's director of operations, who helped co-found the group in 2012.

They wanted to create something on par with what they'd found going out in other cities, and recruited former WERS-FM radio program director Malcolm Gray for help. He tuned the group — which also includes Seun Ajewole, Owen Lumadede, Brian Karanja and Kibbee Miller — into nationally trending DJs and helped build connections.

The group decided that the event would work best as an affordable late-weekend day party that casually starts around 4:30 p.m. and is over by 10 p.m., giving attendees adequate time to prepare for their upcoming work-week responsibilities.

Most that pack in attendance are young professionals and recent college graduates that either grew up in the area or stayed after finishing their education. Held on Sundays (usually ones that coincide with a Monday holiday), there are specialty drinks, scene-setting photos, new and classic music served up by resident and visiting DJs, and an unmistakably affirming energy.

Many will tell you that local venues are often reluctant to host "hip-hop" parties as there is a presumption that with them comes an element of trouble, but CLLCTV found a willing partner in Middlesex after winning over general manager Nate Brown, who first booked the Wave event. "I'm a big fan of those dudes," he says. "They're some of the most positive, professional people I've worked with, of any age."

Francois says that after more than two years of successfully staging the Wave monthly, outsiders have taken notice. This summer the group brought in DJs from New York and Atlanta, and this Sunday they welcome visiting DJs Tek.Lun and Graves, of the independent label HW&W — most famously associated with this year's breakout R&B, Kaytranada (who plays the Paradise the night before). All their guests have been pleasantly surprised by the culture they found, and by what CLLCTV has built.

"It's always funny because a lot of people will say that they didn't know there were people of color in Boston, or 'I didn't know Boston got down like this. I didn't know there was this much energy in Boston,'" according to Francois. "We're a slept-on city. We want people to understand there's a lot going on here."

Inspired energy, eclectic DJs, a promising future and a full night's sleep? That's just the Wave.

Jill Valle's "I Am a Woman Who" movement comes to the BCAE.

RACHEL RACZKA
@rachelraczka
rachelraczka@metro.us

Milton-bred artist Jill Valle wants to get into your head. The photographer, painter and psychotherapist will bring her movement, "I Am a Woman Who," to the Boston Center for Adult Education on Saturday for a day of intimate portrait sessions. Valle, who now lives in the South End, talks each student through a introspective stream of conscious writing exercise, before scrawling the phrases onto canvas backdrops with India ink. Participants are then photographed against their own words by Valle.

"The beauty of the process is that people try to plan out to say, but it's meant to be organic and in the moment," explains Valle. "When they finally write, it ends up being full of contradictions — words that are powerful, celebratory, then full of hurt. That speaks to the nature of being human; we're a whole host of contradictions and that's OK."

Valle, who graduated from Boston College and Lesley University before heading to L.A. to teach, dreamed up the project from the journaling exercises she would do with her students. She would give them the prompt, "I Am a Girl Who..." and have them record their stream of consciousness. "I was so moved by what they wrote that I started doing it with my friends," she explains. The words were then incorporated with Valle's love for photography, initially appearing on her participants' bodies, before transferring to canvas.

The movement brought Valle to perform the exercise with various support and community programs across the country — ranging from the LGBTQ outreach groups to the TEDx Olympic Blvd Women conference in 2015 — switching up the prompts as needed, while keeping the end result visually similar. While every experience is unique and insightful, Valle says there are recurring themes that connect all of her clients.

"There are so many commonalities," she adds. "I originally started doing this project, I wanted to see a visual and heart-centered way that explains what connects us as women, despite our differences — I think women can look at their scrawled papers of affirmation and say, 'These words aren't just mine, they're every woman's.' Valle also does the project herself every year ("I have to talk myself into it, so I know how it can be scary or feel strange") and hopes to expand her efforts abroad.

"I want to do this [project] all over the world," she says. "This could be totally different in a culture that's not as navel-gazing or narcissistic. I spent a lot of time in India, and the women I was working with would tell me what they wanted for themselves and their children. There are commonalities there, and there are things we don't express on a daily basis that go unnoticed. This is a heart-opening experience; it allows people to visualize and that can cultivate compassion and understanding."

The artist completes the exercise herself every year. JILL VALLE

Craft cocktails and sunshine in Aruba

The island is now a destination for innovative drinks.

For many, a Caribbean vacation means three things: sun, surf and supersweet, snowball-size drinks.

In Aruba, the drink of choice for generations has been the Aruba Ariba, a cocktail classic that relies on coecoei, a red agave-based liquor you can only find on the island, as a key ingredient. That's one reason you should try the drink while in Aruba — you won't be able to get it easily anywhere else on the planet.

But once you've tried the Aruba Ariba, there will be plenty of other concoctions to sample as the island comes into its own as a destination for cocktail enthusiasts.

On Oct. 15, sip one, or five — hey, you're on vacay! — delicious cocktails during Island Temptations magazine's Bartenders' Brawl. Top local bartenders will throw down during this epic battle of mixology for a chance to be crowned Aruba's Iron Bartender.

This is the second year Island Temptations is holding the Bartenders' Brawl, which is seeing its field of battle expanding.

"We had three bartenders last year, representing three major island liquor purveyors, this year we have five bartenders representing five companies who are competing with original drink recipes," says Rona Coster, who manages public relations and special projects for the magazine.

Danny van der Linden, of former restaurant, now catering business Hollywood Smokehouse, won with the Aruba Aloe cocktail, a tequila-based refresher, after 200 ticket holders sampled the cocktails in competition and picked their favorite.

"This year, the public, locals and tourists will sample all five and then vote," says Coster.

The ingredients of the Aruba Aloe underscore how the fresh fruits and kitchen techniques of the craft-cocktail scene, which has gripped America and Europe, is making its way to the islands: Sauza Gold Tequila, Aloe Vera Juice, house-made cucumber soda, mint, agave, fresh lime juice, a pinch of salt, mint and aloe caviar.

Tina Causey-Bislick, the editorial and creative director for Island Temptations and former creative director for Hollywood Smokehouse, said Aruba restaurants and bars are now striving for "something beyond the typical sugar- and high fructose corn syrup-laden frozen daiquiris and margaritas."

Establishments now "infuse some of our liquors, make our own fresh ginger and cucumber sodas, and we are dabbling in some unique homemade bitters," said Causey-Bislick. "Our craft cocktails are becoming a hit for destination beach weddings, with the Aruba Aloe, as well as our Cocopom Cooler — which is a modern take on traditional rum punch, the Lemonade Serenade (super refreshing beach cocktail), and the Sangria Sunset Sparkle being the most requested."

What's in store during the Bartenders' Brawl? That's under wraps as the competitors prepare.

"I do not know what cocktails they are competing with, as they are keeping a tight lid on their creations until the night of the event," says Causey-Bislick. "After last year's Bartender's Brawl and the overwhelming success of the sold-out event, it was exciting to see Aruba's bartenders stepping up their game, trying new techniques, and now craft cocktails are mainstreaming throughout the resorts and restaurants on the island." ## Fall Color of The Mount Washington Cog Railway

MARSHFIELD STATION, NH - Considered a must-do for visitors to New England, the First Mountain Climbing Cog Railway in the world offers amazing fall foliage colors. Riders get a three-hour round trip to the summit of Mount Washington, the highest peak in the Northeast. The Cog Railway will run up to ten trips per day, with trains departing every hour on the half hour.

Driving to the Cog Railway is part of the adventure, as it is located along the White Mountain Trail, designated a National Scenic Byway. Along the scenic drive up to the White Mountains, one can find quintessential New England towns bustling with everything from antique shops to local eateries. Along the six-mile road to the base of Mount Washington, visitors can take pictures of waterfalls, wildlife and foliage in the White Mountain Forest.

At the Cog's Base Station, visitors find a fascinating new Cog Railway Museum, a restaurant with indoor or outdoor seating to watch the passing trains, and a gift shop. Always a favorite among kids of all ages, feeding the trout at Pepper-sass Pond!

The Cog offers an impressive $10 off on each ticket on the last train of the day, September 17 through October 30. Tickets for Cog Railway excursions can be purchased at thecog.com. Due to the popularity of the rides, buying tickets in advance is strongly recommended. Located on Base Road, Marshfield Station, NH, just 6 miles from Rt 302 and historic Bretton Woods, NH. For schedule and tickets, visit thecog.com or contact The Cog toll-free at 1-800-922-8825, in New Hampshire at 603-278-5404.

OPINION

BILL DUBIEL

More young players emerged in Week 3, and many should still be on the fantasy waiver wire in your league. Get the jump on them as soon as you can.

Washington should carry the mail

With Ameer Abdullah sidelined for at least the next seven or eight weeks, the Lions backfield was completely up in the air going into Week 3. The picture is now a bit clearer; pass-catching specialist Theo Riddick proved that he can't be a feature back while rookie Dwayne Washington showed how effective he can be on the ground. Riddick rushed for just nine yards on 10 carries, while Washington trucked his way to 38 yards on the same amount of carries. Riddick will remain the primary pass-catching option, while Washington seems to have established himself as the main ball-carrier.

Swiss army knife Pryor locked-in

Former college quarterback

NFL sleepers of the week

Each week we will identify three players worth taking a shot on in deeper leagues.

Jamison Crowder, WR, Washington Redskins – Has emerged as a consistent flex option each week, with 185 yards and two touchdowns on 16 catches through three games.

Jordan Howard, RB, Chicago Bears – With Jeremy Langford expected to miss four to six weeks and backup Ka'Deem Carey also ailing, Howard should be the feature back for Week 4 and beyond.

Cameron Brate, TE, Tampa Bay Buccaneers – Austin Seferian-Jenkins was released by the Bucs last week, leaving Brate as the unquestioned tight end. He responded with a 5-46-2 line in Week 3, and should continue to produce every week.

Terrelle Pryor made an impact in every aspect of the offense in Week 3, posting 144 yards on eight catches, 21 yards and a touchdown as a runner and 35 passing yards as a QB. With rookie Cody Kessler not prepared to carry the lackluster offense, it's a safe bet that Pryor will continue to be the X-factor as the Browns try to move the ball down the field. With this kind of usage expected to continue, Pryor needs to be added in all formats.

Murray losing touches every week

The Raiders' Latavius Murray was drafted as an RB2 in most fantasy leagues, and he's returned that value on the strength of three rushing touchdowns (one in each week). Unfortunately for his team's owners, Murray now seems to be entrenched in a timeshare of sorts, as both Jalen Richard and DeAndre Washington are seeing significant touches each week. Washington even led the Raiders in rushing in Week 3 with 57 yards on just six rushes against the Titans. It's impossible to bank on a touchdown each week, and if Murray isn't scoring then he may not be worth starting.

NFL power rankings by Luke Miller

No. 1

Broncos
(3-0)

Trevor Siemian tossed four touchdown passes, including a 55-yarder to Demaryius Thomas. Their D and running game makes them elite

No. 2

Patriots
(3-0)

Defeating Houston with their third-stringer at QB was something, particularly after the way the Patriots looked to be on the ropes at the end of the Dolphins game.

No. 3

Vikings
(3-0)

This defense is for real. A week after handling Aaron Rodgers, the Vikings sacked Cam Newton eight times and managed to come back from a 10-point deficit.

No. 4

Eagles
(3-0)

The Eagles earned this big jump. Hanging the largest loss of the week on the reigning rankings No. 1 is a far cry from looking good against Chicago and Cleveland.

No. 5

Chiefs
(2-1)

Kansas City didn't even need an offense to take the field against the Jets. They had eight turnovers, two defensive scores, and limited an offense that had decimated the Bills a week earlier.

No. 6

Packers
(2-1)

After Aaron Rodgers threw four touchdown passes in the first half on their way to a 31-3 lead, the Packers just managed to run out the clock in the second half.

No. 7

Seahawks
(2-1)

The Seahawks alleviated concerns that the first two weeks were something larger than the regular season opening malaise we've seen in Seattle the past few years.

No. 8

Steelers
(2-1)

Ben Roethlisberger was off against Philly, his receivers were dropping passes, and DeAngelo Williams couldn't get going. Maybe this offense is just good, not great.

No. 9

Panthers
(1-2)

Protecting Cam Newton has to become an immediate priority. It sounds crazy that it wouldn't be already, but evidence from the Broncos and Vikings games looks bad.

Best of the rest

10 — Texans (2-1)
11 — Falcons (2-1)
12 — Cardinals (1-2)
13 — Ravens (3-0)
14 — Bengals (1-2)

15 — Raiders (2-1)
16 — Jets (1-2)
17 — Giants (2-1)
18 — Bills (1-2)
19 — Cowboys (2-1)
20 — Lions (1-2)
21 — Redskins (1-2)

Bill Belichick is wondering what he has to do to get top billing in our power rankings. GETTY IMAGES

Aries Don't share too much with others. Assess what people are doing and adjust your plans accordingly. A secretive approach will give you the edge over any competition.

Taurus Take action if you see something you want. Claim your space, stake out your position and pursue your goals. You can turn your idea or plan into a reality.

Gemini Ask questions. Don't believe anyone who is pushy, persuasive or offering the impossible. You'll benefit if you gather facts and take care of business personally.

Cancer Discuss your plans with someone who will be affected by the decisions you make. The input you get will be helpful and will lead to a closer bond between you.

Leo Plan a trip or make arrangements to get together with people who inspire you. Bring about change by presenting what you want to see happen. Success is within reach.

Virgo If you show your playful side while networking, you could build a greater bond with important people. Update your appearance in order to receive compliments.

Libra Avoid a dispute. You cannot win a battle if you do not have the facts. Your perception is off, and this will cost you if you make assumptions or act in haste.

Scorpio Don't leave anything undone. Paying close attention to detail will pay off. An unexpected personal change will help give you a new lease on life.

Sagittarius Someone will withhold information, misinterpret you or lead you astray. Ask questions and look at the big picture before you make a decision.

Capricorn A financial deal will be riddled with problems. Don't count on anything or anyone. Do the legwork yourself and follow instructions carefully.

Aquarius Your hard work will pay off. Stick to your plan and invest in your skills and knowledge. Update your résumé in order to improve your cash flow.

Pisces Do everything according to the instructions you've been given. Save your idea for your own benefit, instead of using it to make someone else look good. EUGENIA LAST
